SYSTEMATIC INVESTING PLAN

A systematic investment plan is a way to invest in mutual funds regularly. The idea is for you to set apart a sum every month or quarter, and use that to purchase units of one or more mutual funds. Typically, these funds would be invested in qualified accounts (e.g. IRAs), or as after-tax investments.

People like such a system because it helps them save regularly and build up an investment. Perhaps the best benefit of setting up a systematic investment plan is that it forces you to set apart some money every month and enforces saving discipline on you. You could argue that this can be done without a systematic investment plan also, and you are right, – just that automation enforces a little more rigor. Good saving and investing habits are more likely to help you accumulate wealth in the long run.

If you would be interested in starting a systematic investment plan, what amount do you think you could afford to invest on a monthly basis? $ _____

RISK TOLERANCE AND SUITABILITY

Many financial decisions are made in situations of uncertainty, and so risk is involved. Different people are comfortable with different levels of risk. A person's risk tolerance is the level of risk with which he or she is comfortable.

The whole issue of risk is a difficult one. Risk aversion prevents many of us from doing as well as we might financially. Yet some of life's most unpleasant financial surprises arise because we were exposed to a level of risk beyond our comfort zone. It can be equally disappointing to miss an opportunity because someone else wrongly assumed we would not be willing to take the risk involved.

Unlike, say, height or weight, there is no unit of measurement for risk tolerance. A person's risk tolerance can only be measured relative to others on a constructed scale, in much the same way as IQ is measured. Additionally, even the meaning of "risk" can depend on the situation. When individuals talk about "risk" as they experience it in their personal financial affairs they are not talking about the same thing as, for example, investment researchers discussing the "risk" of an investment.

So, consumers face a double challenge:

- Firstly, in making an accurate and meaningful assessment of their willingness to accept risk as they perceive it, and
- Secondly, in expressing this assessment in such a way that both what they already have in place, and the alternatives now offered to them, can be evaluated in terms of their risk tolerance.

In the risk tolerance portion of this questionnaire, you are asked about your attitudes, values and experiences. Please answer all of the following questions as best you can.

Generally, those who avail themselves of the significant benefits that our "Comprehensive Planning Techniquesm" provides, are automatically members of our "Platinum Club." In other words, "members," are those individuals and families who develop their living trust-based estate plan through our office, and who also receive coordinated financial advisory services by maintaining a minimum investment in an Investment Advisory Account with our firm.

What does it cost?

There are no additional ongoing membership fees or other charges required.

Is being a member of the Platinum Club a requirement for all clients of the firm?

Absolutely, not. Membership is strictly voluntary. All services provided by the firm may be purchased separately. For example, if you merely wish to establish a Living Trust, power of attorney, Will or other legal document or service, you may retain the firm to provide only those services you wish. Conversely, if you only wish to retain Mr. McKenzie as your financial advisor, that's okay, too!

What are the benefits?

Members of the Platinum Club will enjoy many benefits they will not likely receive anywhere else. For example, Platinum Club members will receive discounted (or even free) legal services throughout their membership. Children, relatives and friends of members may also receive discounted legal services. Members will receive ongoing financial and legal advice on a regular basis (at minimum, annually or semi-annually). Platinum Club members will have regular access to Thomas L. McKenzie, Attorney at Law, in the event that they have important questions regarding their financial or estate plans. And, all benefits of membership are included in the low annual investment advisory fee, which is similar to the fee you would pay a bank or brokerage firm for investment advisory services alone.

In other words, if you wish to establish a fee-only investment advisory account in order to receive professional investment advice and services, you can either pay a financial advisor, bank and brokerage firm between 1% to 3% annually for ongoing investment advice, or you can pay roughly the same amount (or less) in fees to our firm, and you will receive all of the additional benefits of being a Platinum Club member, without additional charges.

Finally, there is the convenience of receiving your estate planning and financial services at one location. This will cut down on the time you need to spend on your planning needs, and provide for more efficient management of your overall plan.

Summary of Benefits and Comparisons

If you already have a financial advisor, or if you believe that expert financial advice would benefit you, then it is crucially important to consider the nature of advice you would be receiving. Receiving financial advice from an independent, full-service financial advisor, who is also a licensed estate planning and elder law attorney, provides many unique benefits to the consumer. And remember, although Mr. McKenzie possesses legal skills and knowledge not found in the vast majority of financial advisors, all financial and legal advice given by Mr. McKenzie at our periodic reviews is included in the firm's standard advisory fee, and there is no additional cost for the much more comprehensive nature of these services and reviews. The chart below compares and contrasts the benefits and issues described in this newsletter:

	Non-Attorney Financial Advisors	Thomas L. McKenzie, JD, RFC
Does your financial advisor work for you as an "independent" advisor, or does he/she work for a bank or brokerage firm?	Sometimes	Yes (Independent Advisor)
Is your financial advisor a " full-service " advisor, or is he/she limited to only certain products sold by their employer (e.g. the insurance company, bank or brokerage firm for which they work)?	Sometimes	Yes (Full-service Advisor)
Is your financial advisor a practicing Estate Planning Attorney , and thus able to include as part of your advisory fee, free, ongoing legal advice regarding your living trust, powers of attorney, etc.?	No	Yes
Is your financial advisor an Elder Law Attorney , and thus able to include as part of your advisory fee, free, ongoing legal advice regarding strategies to protect you and your family as you age?	No	Yes
Does your financial advisor provide periodic financial reviews?	Sometimes	Yes
Can your financial advisor provide all of the advice you need to to protect your family home and other assets, in the event that you or your spouse should require expensive long-term care costs?	No (not licensed to practice law)	Yes
Can your financial advisor assist you with complex legal strategies to protect your children or other beneficiaries?	No (not licensed to practice law)	Yes
Is your financial advisor able to provide expert legal and financial advice to your children or successors in the event of your illness, disability or death?	No (not licensed to practice law)	Yes
Does your financial advisor provide legal advice at your periodic reviews, given at no charge, as part of the investment advisory fee?	No (not licensed to practice law)	Yes

The Platinum Club benefits described above are available only to clients of the firm who have executed an investment advisory agreement with Thomas L. McKenzie as their financial advisor. Unless otherwise agreed upon in advance, some services above require a minimum level of assets-under-management.

Conclusion

So, if you desire professional financial advice, you have two choices. You can retain the services of a typical financial advisor, who can provide the usual range of financial advice and services – or, you can become a member of our Platinum Club, where for roughly the same fee you would be paying another financial advisor, you will receive professional financial advice, as well as many additional and substantial benefits that other planners cannot provide. Our Platinum Club members have a financial advisor, but they also have an Estate Planning and Elder Law attorney who remains available, as part of their plan, to make sure they receive appropriate advice on keeping their plan up-to-date, and assisting them in the event that any problems should arise, be they serious or otherwise. Essentially, Platinum Club membership affords middle and upper-middle class individuals and families comprehensive financial and legal advice which, until now, has primarily been available only to the very rich. We truly hope you will consider being a member of the McKenzie Legal & Financial Platinum Club program!
